

IEW Parent Guidelines

Parents play a vital role in online classes and remain the primary educator in their child's coursework. Your child's success depends on your commitment to your student.

Here are some parent guidelines:

1. Parents to be primarily responsible for their student's coursework.
2. Parents should attend class with their students as often as necessary to help them attend to and understand the instruction given.
3. In the event the student misses class, parents should help their students make time to review the recorded class sessions.
4. Parents are expected to help their students make time to complete required homework as needed.
5. Parents must read every assignment before it is submitted to the instructor.
6. Knowing that technology can be the new "my dog ate my homework" excuse, we expect parents to be proactive in making sure coursework is properly submitted.
7. Parents need to be proactive in contacting the instructor if there appears to be questions about assignments or feedback.

I look forward to partnering with you in this educational journey. Please contact me if you have any questions.
